

Well Dressed

People judge other people by their clothes. It may be wrong, probably in some cases. It is every woman's right to be well dressed. It is every woman's right to be as well dressed as she can be. If she can't feel that she is properly clothed she can't be comfortable; can't enjoy herself, or take her proper part in the affairs of life.

How.

The problem is, how to be well dressed on little money. The first thing is to find the right store to buy from. Money is only good for what it will buy. It is worth most where it will buy most.

Where.

We don't believe there's a better place in America for Liverpool ladies to buy goods than right in our store. In buying and selling we have the interest of our patrons in mind, as well as our own, and we try to gain trade by deserving it.

When.

Now's the time to begin to look about for fall and winter goods. There certainly never was a time that we had so good a stock, and prices so low. The new fall dress goods, cloaks and trimmings are all in stock awaiting your inspection at

THEY HAVE GONE HOME

The High Tent, Rechabites, Completes its Work.

LADIES CAN NOW BE MEMBERS

Of the Highest Lodge of the Order in This Country, but Their Privileges Are Curtailed—Delegates Chosen to the Convention in Edinburgh, Scotland, Next Year—The Executive Council in Session.

The Rechabites have finished their work, and many have gone to their homes in different parts of the country.

The finishing touches were put on the constitution and ritual at the meeting yesterday afternoon, after a great deal of talking and discussion. No great change was made in the ritual, but the ladies won at every point in the battle for constitutional reform. Hereafter they will have representatives in the High tent, a concession for which they have been battling since they were granted a representative in the Grand tent. Their powers in the highest organization of the order, however, are limited, and they can have nothing to do with the ritual. If possessed of sufficient popularity they can hold minor offices, but cannot vote on the more important questions which may come up. They are to have their own special degree and can discuss the business of the tent when it is in session, but that is all. These new rules are considered important, as they open a way which the ladies believe will, eventually, lead them to full recognition. Many and vigorous were the speeches before this conclusion was reached, but the friends of the ladies would not be put down, and were so persistent that they won. At the election of officers the following were chosen for the year: High chief ruler, George W. Glenn, Accomac, Va.; high deputy ruler, William Reynolds, Norway, Mich.; high lecturer, L. F. Quigley, Zanesville; high secretary, John R. Mahoney, Washington; high treasurer, T. B. Marche, Vienna, Va.; past high chief ruler, S. C. Coleman, East Liverpool; high chaplain, Ira N. Stillwell, Ithica, N. Y.; high guardian, William Hunter, Lonaconing, Md.

Before officers were chosen it was decided to divide the position of secretary-treasurer as the business had grown to such proportions as make it far too much work for one man. Lonaconing, Md., was chosen as the next place of meeting, and the time fixed as the third Tuesday in August. S. C. Coleman, of this city, and T. B. Marche, of Vienna, Va., were chosen as delegates to the high movable conference which meets in Edinburgh, Scotland, the second Tuesday of next August. The gentlemen will represent this country in the highest body of the order in the world, and will confer with the English delegates regarding the work in hand. The meeting was harmonious in spite of the earnest arguments, and almost every action was ratified by unanimous consent. There was some work regarding grand and district tents to be transacted, but it was left to the tender mercies of the executive council.

In the evening the body was entertained by Liberty tent, and as all high officers must take the ladies' degree they showed the mysteries to Messrs. Quigley, Marriott, Wands, Hill, Stillwell, Blake, Reynolds and Hunter. Some time was required in this, but after it was all over they found 20 minutes to consume in hand-shaking, and then began the formal reception. Excellent speeches were made by Messrs. Glenn, Reynolds, Quigley, Mahoney, Lee, Curfman, Kirby; and by Sisters Huffman, Milligan and Poe. Brother Vaughn sang a song very well, and, like the other visitors, did his best to consume the ice cream and cake which was served at the close of the literary program. There were 104 lady members and fully 75 others present, and all united in saying that the reception was one of the most pleasant features of the High tent meeting.

At the meeting of the executive council, immediately after the social, it was decided to continue the publication of the official organ, the Silver Cord, with T. B. Marche, editor; S. C. Coleman, associate; J. R. Mahoney, manager. Messrs. Marche and Mahoney were appointed a committee on printing, and it was decided to subsidize the paper, as it was not self-sustaining. The committee manifested a desire to see the publication of the paper continued, as it served as an excellent medium for spreading the doctrines of the order. After selecting pins and badges for the High tent, the committee adjourned. With this the business of the session was at an end, and members who reside at a distance hastened to prepare for the journey home. They deeply regretted that they could not remain for the picnic today, but personal affairs called them to their homes, and would not admit of delay. Messrs. Mahoney and Kirby remained, and attended the picnic today.

The meeting of the High tent was among the most pleasant in the history of the order, and all the members expressed their gratification at the treatment accorded them here.

CARPENTERS DENY

That They Do Not Approve of the Crisis Boycott.

Some one will be called upon to answer why the local rat paper stated last night that the carpenters opposed the boycott.

A reporter questioned S. McGovern, a well known member of the union today, and he stated that no such action had been taken, that the union endorsed the work of trades council, and had never condemned that body for boycotting the rat paper. In explanation he said that the matter probably originated with a member of the union who is also believed to own an interest in the sheet. He was indignant at the publication, and said that some one would have to answer for it as the Carpenters' union had never made that move. It is in order for the rat of Locust alley to explain.

HE DESERVED IT

And Got a Healthy Slap on the Mouth For an Insult.

An incident was noticed by a News Review reporter on Sixth street last night, which was at least one case of an insulter punished, and what should be a warning to others of his kind.

A crowd was standing on a corner about 9 o'clock when two well dressed ladies passed by. One of the loafers seemed to think he could safely take advantage of the opportunity to say something at least impudent if not insulting, and ripped off a string of vulgarity directed to the ladies. The latter stopped, and as the crowd noticed it several prepared to move away. They scented trouble and were not mistaken in the least when they expected something unusual to happen. The elder woman reached the side of the young man who had insulted her, and in an instant her hand had landed squarely across his mouth. It was a stinging blow, and, although it came with little force the young man felt it for awhile. Not a word was spoken and the two ladies passed on, and the young man, it was noticed, attended strictly to his own business afterward. It was subsequently learned that the couple were mother and daughter, and had been subjected to insult by the same gang once before during the evening. The mother finally decided to take a hand, and one youth will remember hereafter that respectable people walk the streets at night, and that they have rights, too.

CLOSED UP.

Constable Albright Serves an Execution on Joseph Walters Today.

The judgment in the Graves Walters case, small as it was, sufficed to shove the defendant to the wall.

This morning Constable Dick Albright closed up the carriage shop of Joseph Walters in Church alley and it is still closed at a late hour this afternoon. The judgment was $48.75 and Graves caused an execution to be issued for the amount. They only course left for the defendant to now pursue is to either appeal to a higher court or pay the execution. It is thought that an appeal will be made.

Mr. Walters misfortune is regretted by his many friends who earnestly hope he will be able to resume business at an early date. He has a counter claim amounting to almost as much as the judgment, but the jury failed to allow this against Graves.

Lawler is Commander.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—At the encampment this morning Col. Thomas G. Lawler was elected commander by 11 votes over Col. T. H. Walker. It was the closest contest in the history of the organization. Major A. C. Burchfield was made senior vice commander and Charles Sharpe junior vice commander.

Will View the Street.

The committee appointed by council to look over the ground asked in the formation of the new street, in Bradshaw's addition, will meet tonight, at 6 o'clock, and view the place. They want to thoroughly understand the situation.

WITHOUT A PREACHER

East End Will Soon be Deserted by Ministers.

REVEREND KNOX HAS RESIGNED

Touching Scene at a Meeting in the Second United Presbyterian Church Last Night—He Goes to Iowa to Regain Health That is Rapidly Slipping Away.

There was a touching scene at the Second United Presbyterian church last evening when Reverend Knox announced to his congregation that after a month had passed he could no longer serve them as pastor.

The announcement came much in the nature of a surprise, as there were few in the large audience who knew of the intended move. Reverend Knox explained that for a long time he knew his health was failing in this climate. He could feel himself grow older, and knew that every year spent in this vicinity made great inroads upon his physical being. The church at Bloomington, Iowa, had extended him a call, and after due deliberation he had decided to accept. His arrangement with them was to begin there in a month, and he would leave this city about that time. Reverend Knox explained that the salary was $1,900 a year, increased by a parsonage which belongs to the congregation. He spoke many words of comfort and cheer to the people assembled, and it was evident that many persons were sobbing in different parts of the church. Reverend Knox was visibly affected, and tears chased down his cheeks as he talked. Then he stepped from the pulpit and began shaking hands with the people, and the scene became more affecting. Strong men were in tears, and all present manifested in some way the grief they experienced at the prospective loss of their beloved pastor.

When established in his new home, Reverend Knox will be but 60 miles from Beverend Marshall, located in a pretty, healthy spot where he hopes to recover his failing strength. The East End will be without a minister, and four churches in the city will not have pastors. Reverend Cooper is in Kansas, and Reverend Knowles moved away about a year ago. Reverend Hall, who has been supplying the Second Methodist Episcopal pulpit, will leave in two weeks for Boston, where he will continue his studies. The prospects are that all these churches will be supplied in the near future; perhaps before the year is at an end.

Reverend Knox is held in the highest esteem by his congregation as an earnest, conscientious Christian gentleman, and will leave this city with the best wishes of all who have had the good fortune to know him.

Fell Down an Elevator.

Harry Culbertson, one of the Pittsburgh messengers, is lying at his home on Walnut street as the result of a fall down an elevator in Pittsburgh yesterday. He was at his headquarters, 943 Liberty street, and was going through a dark passage way to get a wheelbarrow when he stepped in the hole and went down. He dropped about 15 feet and had the elevator been down would no doubt have been dangerously hurt. As it was a quantity of straw and paper broke the force of the fall. The arteries in his right leg were ruptured but Culbertson did not notice any pain, and went about his work, walking 12 squares or more. When the train reached here he had to be carried from the train, and was conveyed home in a bus. He will be able to bout and resume business in about a week.

Merry Wedding Bells.

Mr. John P. Baker and Miss Minnie M. Standley, both of Fredericktown, were married yesterday by Doctor Huston, of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The young people have the best wishes of many friends for a happy future.

Mr. Sumner S. Lafré and Miss Rosa Behrmann, both residents of this city, have joined hearts and fortunes for the future, Doctor Huston performing the ceremony yesterday.

Mr. Clarence C. Golden and Miss Maggie V. Peck, two estimable young people, were married last evening by Doctor Huston. The happy couple will begin housekeeping at once, with the earnest and sincere wishes of a host of friends that their existence will contain all the happiness to be found as they tread the road of life.

Tiltonville Pottery Settled.

Alfred and John Rowe, the former manager and principal stockholder, and the latter a stockholder in the Tiltonville Pottery company, were in the city today closed with W. L. Medill, Esq., receiver of the pottery.

They gave out that the company has adjusted with all creditors and an application has been made to the court to defer the sale of the property which was to have taken place Monday, until some preliminary matters toward a settlement can be finished. The news of the settlement will be hailed with delight by the people of Tiltonville.—Steubenville Gazette.

Object to the Floor.

There was to have been a meeting of fire committee last night, but a quorum was not present. In speaking of the matter today Mr. Swindells said that it was all in the pavement in the fire station. They do not like it, and it does not answer the purpose. It is the only station in the country paved in that manner and was not equal to the demands of the department. The chief objection is found in the fact that it is always slippery and a horse might fall at any time. A committeeman strongly condemns the old committee for paving the station and it is not unlikely that boards will be substituted.

The Coming Conference.

The East Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene next Wednesday in Warren, and will continue for six days. It is the same body that appeared in this city a year ago, and went away with so many good words for the people. Bishop Walden, of Cincinnati will preside at the Warren meeting, and Bishop Thoburn, of India, will be among the notable officials of the church to be in attendance. There are 225 pastoral charges in the conference, and the number of others having a right to recognition will bring the official attendance to 300.

Fell Through the Trestle.

What might have been a serious accident on the street car line this morning was averted by the prompt action of a motorman and the fright of a little girl. Little Edna Morris was standing on the Wellsville trestle when a west bound car came along. The motorman shut off the current, and almost had the car at a stand still when the girl dropped through the trestle preferring to take chances that way to being hit by the car. She was picked up and taken to her home nearby, complaining that her back was hurt.

Poor Police Business.

Chief Gill is almost despairing of any boom in police business. He said last night that he does not remember the time when it was so slow as at present. The officers have nothing to do, and the people are so quiet that they manifest no disposition to break the law. There is something radically wrong, for a reporter has investigated, and discovered that there are old offenders who have been in the habit of getting before the mayor at least once a month, who now behave themselves as though they never intended to sin.

Looking For Snickers.

The green goods men are active again, and their circulars are coming into town. Among the recipients is a well known professional man, who wondered greatly that he should get one of the baits so innocently put forth. Several others are in the city, but as usual there is no clue to the sender except the telegraphic number sent with the letter. It is the same old worn out scheme, however, typewritten letter, newspaper clipping, but the game has been attempted so often here that there is little likelihood of anyone being caught.

Gone to the Fair.

The New Lisbon fair, which for some reason is always known as the county fair, is being held in New Lisbon this week, and a number of persons drove over from the city this morning to spend the day there. The entries are remarkably full and a good exhibition is promised. The turf events are not so great as to attract some of the best horses in the state, but the wheelmen will have quite a show. Two of East Liverpool's best men are going to be there, and other parts of the county must look to their laurels.

Home From the Encampment.

Every train brings people of this city home from the encampment in Pittsburgh, and they all tell the same story of crowd and crush. So far as could be learned no accidents have happened to visitors from this city, although many have come back with hats looking the worse for wear, and some feeling decidedly sore. The great event afforded people of this city pleasure, and gave the veterans a day they will not forget to the end of their natural lives. Some of the old boys met comrades they had not seen in many years.

ABANDONED HIS WIFE

William Brenaman Got Weary of Married Life,

AND NOW SHE WANTS A DIVORCE

She was Going to Do it Some Time Ago, But the Husband Prevailed Upon Her to Withdraw the Action—Another Patient For the Newburg Asylum.

NEW LISBON, Sept. 12.—Through Attorney A. W. Taylor, Mrs. Leah Brenaman, of Columbiana, took legal steps today for divorce and future maintenance from her husband, William Brenaman. Though advanced in years this couple have only been married since 1887, he abandoning her one year ago. Cruel and abusive treatment and gross neglect are specified as causes for the action. Soon after his leaving her in July 1893, as she says without any cause or provocation, Mrs. Brenaman, fled an action here to obtain alimony, but was prevailed upon to withdraw it, by him, he representing to her that his property was so heavily encumbered by mortgages that she would be unable to secure anything and offered a settlement of $125 which she accepted, he inducing her to make her mark to some written instrument which she did not then know, nor does she now, the contents or purport of it. The defendant owns considerable property in Columbiana, valued at about $1,500, and draws a pension of $17 a month. She wants him enjoined from disposing of any of it and the court to grant her share in it together with her costs and divorce.

Monroe Younger, of Salem, was bound over to this court today in the sum of $100, from Squire Fountain's court, for an assault made in September on William Roe.

An inquest of lunacy was made by Judge Young, today, on Mrs. Minnie Travis, a colored woman of this place, and application was made for her admission into the Cleveland asylum.

The will of the late Alban Stanley, of Knox township, was admitted to probate on application.

The calendar of the September term of circuit court has been issued and shows that the case of the Golding Sons company versus Timothy Connor is fourteenth on the list. There are but 16 cases in all, and the term will not be long.

Improving the Plant.

Ground was broken yesterday for the erection of another kiln at the Standard pottery. This will increase the capacity of the plant, as the company have enough shop room to admit of it. The other three kilns required to make it an eight kiln plant will be built from time to time as the trade warrants the improvement. It is expected that the new kiln will be finished and ready for the first fire in four weeks. Sixteen to 20 extra men will then be employed.

An Association Reception.

The members of the Young Men's Christian association will give a reception this evening in gymnasium hall. Miss Julia Kenny, of Akron, Prof. G. E. Gotshall, of Scio, Miss Florence Everson, of Wellsville, and Miss Ella Baker, of Detroit, will take part. They will be supported by some of the best musical talent in the city, and the reception will be among the best ever given by the association. An invitation is extended to the general public.

Real Estate Improving.

The real estate market is improving, and not a week goes by without one or more transfers being made. Within the past month a number of small sales were made, and last Saturday a house and lot, involving the exchange of $1,600, was sold by an agent. This marks the revival in business, and will doubtless continue to grow in volume. For a year the sale of realty was such a rarity that any transfer, however small, attracted attention.

We May Have a Circus.

The advance agent of a small circus now playing in the towns of western Pennsylvania, was in town yesterday looking over the ground, and wondering whether his combination could make expenses if they came to this place. This is the first year in many that the city has passed through without a circus, and there are many small boys who will hope that the circus decides in the affirmative. There are but few small shows on the road this year.

Will Reside Here.

The family of Doctor Laughlin arrived here this afternoon from Georgetown, and will make their home on Sixth street, their household goods having reached here this morning.

The Trades and Labor Council of East Liverpool, in full session assembled, warmly advocates the News Review as the only paper in this City of East Liverpool employing union labor exclusively, and advocating the cause of legitimately and legally organized labor.

The News Review believes in fair play—justice to workmen and employers alike—and will stand or fall on this platform.
Fair play is a jewel of untarnished and undimmed lustre, and all citizens will receive fair play in these columns.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Secretary of State,
S. M. TAYLOR.

JOHN A. SHACK.
Member of Board of Public Works,
CHARLES J. GRACE.
Commissioner of Schools,

C. D. FILON.
For President,
WILLIAM MCKINLEY,
OF OHIO.

When the people of New York get done with Tammany, the once proud tiger will look more like a disheartened cat.

If the charges are true, the Democratic campaign managers will have a nice time telling why they came to appoint so many of their relations.

The Republicans are preparing for a vigorous campaign, and Democracy will be put on the defensive from the beginning. That is the way to win victories.

When congress meets again some of its members will not manifest great interest in the work, for they will know that with March they will retire forever.

KEEP BOTH EYES OPEN.

The county Democratic organization, ordered and controlled by the political bosses who so successfully worked the convention, is making a desperate attempt to capture a few offices at the coming election. They are leaving no stone unturned in the attempt to get their hands upon county money, and will keep up the fight until the last hour. Among the foremost leaders is the Lisbon Patriot, an antiquated sheet prone to forget veracity when using campaign material. It not only lauds its own candidates and deprecates the Republican seekers for distinction, but so far forgets its good sense as to blame the high price of corn on the present administration. There are ways and ways in politics, but when any journal imagines that its readers are so ignorant as to believe that the Democratic party and not the drought raised the rate on corn, the time has come for him to seek the backwoods of Indiana or Arkansas.

GOOD DOCTRINE.

When Governor McKinley spoke at Bangor last week he gave utterance to these truthful words:

"The law of 1890 was enacted for the American people and the American home. Whatever mistakes were made by it were all in favor of the occupations and the firesides of the American people. It didn't take away a single day's work from a solitary American workman. It gave work and wages to all such as they never had before. It did it by establishing new and great industries in this country, which increased the demand for the skill and the handwork of our laborers everywhere. It had no friends in Europe. It gave their industries no stimulus—it gave no employment to their labor at the expense of our own, and this cannot truthfully be said of the law of 1894. During more than two years of the administration of President Harrison, and down to its end, it raised all the revenue necessary to pay the vast expenditures of the government, including the interest on the public debt and the pensions. It never encroached upon the gold reserve, which in the past had always been sacredly preserved, for the redemption of the outstanding paper obligations of the government."

Can anyone doubt the truth of these statements? Where is there an intelligent man who does not know they are true?

Hot Today.

About 5,000 Guests Present—The Reports of the G. A. R. Officials Submitted—Governor Patton's Welcome to the G. A. R. Delegates—Commander Adams Made an Interesting Reply—Reunions and Other Meetings Being Held.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The fight for commander-in-chief is waxing fierce and hot in the secret session of the G. A. R. encampment this morning. As the meeting is secret, it is hard to get at the prospects of each man, although the fight has narrowed down between Colonel P. N. Walker of Indiana and Colonel Thomas G. Lawler of Illinois. Colonel Walker's chances are decidedly brighter.
The Pennsylvania delegation, with 44 votes, has gone over to him. The Lawler adherents hope to get all the strength which Judge Long had before his withdrawal. It is possible though that delegates who intended voting for Judge Long for personal admiration, excited by

HENRY WATTERSON.

his fight on the pension matter, may not follow his department into supporting another, but will feel themselves free to vote for whom they choose. It is this scattered and uncertain vote upon which the hopes of John D. Bigger of Texas and Warfield of California rest.

Louisville has captured the next encampment. The vote was unanimously in favor of the Kentucky city. The delegates went wild over the speech of Colonel Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, inviting them to meet in Kentucky next year.
During the course of his speech he said:
"I have come bringing a message from your countrymen on the other side of the line, but whose hearts beat in hearty response to yours and who want to see you. Candor compels me to say that there was a time when, without any invitation, either written or verbal, you insisted on seeing them. It was a pity that, coming when we were unprepared, you should refuse us now that we are prepared, now that the hatch string is out, that we should be refused the pleasure of entertaining you, greeting you, not with bloody hands, but as friends and brothers, as fellow citizens, whose loyalty has been put to the highest test. I am sure that whatever your decision you will credit me with entire sincerity when I say that I never felt happier in my life than in bearing this message to you, to come to us and stay with us."

"Incidentally allow me to suggest that you end your first day's march and light your campfires near that river which runs through all this country from the mountains to the sea. You will find there very much to exhilarate you. (This reference to the Kentucky product produced a laugh.)

"You will find men wearing the same uniforms who sometimes in moments of exaltation forget upon which side of the war they fought. And, finally, you will find there the most universal welcome—a welcome from men and women who know how to welcome and are no less Americans because they happen to be Kentuckians. The issues that made a war between brethren possible can never be resuscitated. I have faith in American institutions. We should not let to impress upon this generation the lessons that came to us out of this war.

GENERAL LUCIUS FAIRCHILD.

No good soldier can be a bad citizen.
There never was a conflict whose consequences have been so beneficial.

"We boast of our common sense, but it is claimed sometimes that we are not a homogeneous people, and the claim is exceptional capacity is set up by provincial assurance. The very best heritage we can possess to those who receive our heritage is a love of country and strong brotherly regard. It only takes 10 days and a change of rainfall to change a typical Vermonter into a typical Texan. Oh! come to us. Thank God, the flag you will find in Louisville is ours as well as yours.

"The star-spangled banner, oh, long may it wave,

the brave."

Pittsburg to the officers and delegates to the Twenty-eighth National Encampment last night. It was a superb affair and eclipsed anything of the kind ever attempted in Western Pennsylvania.
Five thousand guests were present, majority being carried there by special trains.

The following reunions and other meetings are being held and will be held today and tonight.

At 8 p. m.—Reception by the committee on entertainment of ladies at Old City hall, Market street; grand march

During the course of his annual address to the National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Commander-in-Chief Adams said:
"The consolidated reports of the several departments, submitted to me by the adjutant general, show the following: One year ago they were in good standing, 397,223. There have been gained during the year: By muster-in, 16,792; by transfer, 6,354; by reinstatement, 14,036; by reinstatement from delinquent reports, 2,519. Total gain, 39,691. Aggregate, 436,884.

"There have been lost: By death, 7,283; by honorable discharge, 1,756; by transfer, 7,132; by suspension, 34,805; by honorable discharge, 154; by delinquent reports, 16,671. Total loss, 67,801.
Number remaining in good standing June 30, 1894, 369,083.

"These figures show that the Grand Army of the Republic has reached the beginning of the end, and that each succeeding year will show a gradual decrease of our membership.

The commander recommended that some of the departments be consolidated, as they were getting thinned out.
He was very much pleased with the way Memorial day is being observed.

On the financial condition he said:
"Our financial condition is excellent.
By examining the quartermaster general's report you will find that, notwithstanding our loss of membership, we have more money in the treasury than a year ago, and all bills paid. I earnestly urge the strictest economy in the expenditures. It is believed that our organization will find a full treasury very acceptable in its declining years.

We have not forgotten the great work of charity, and have expended $203, 780.10 for relief. While we have lost in membership, the interest in the order has not abated, but has grown stronger."

"Of the Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans, he said:
"Born under my administration while department commander of Massachusetts, I have seen the W. R. C. grow from a little band of earnest women to more than 140,000. For the first time, this year the W. R. C. was officially represented in the National Council of Women."

"The Sons of Veterans are as loyal and true as were their fathers, and should the country require their services they would respond as promptly to the call to arms. As our ranks grow thinner let us urge them to strengthen theirs, so that this nation will ever have a reserved force of loyal men organized and officered as our order has been, ready as we are to march in support of the constituted authorities of the United States whenever the services of the volunteer are required."

Then said he: "At our last National encampment the gross injustice to the veterans was brought to our attention and prompt action was taken. By vote of the encampment, the commander-in-chief was instructed to make a test case in the courts of the United States. But, the commander says, the case of Judge Long covers every point, so it was deemed unnecessary to bring such a case. Three hundred dollars have been contributed to help Judge Long fight his case. Then said he: "By act of congress, the pension is now made a vested right. I have been doing my best to find out what that does for the pensioner. As he is examined, re-examined, reduced and dropped the same as before, I am unable to say what advantage the act is.

He recommended a permanent headquarters, where the records can be locked in a fireproof safe, to be in charge of a custodian.

The commander then said: "While our age is such that we could perform little active service, we are still young enough to protect property and support the constituted authorities in enforcing obedience to law. The past year has been one of anxiety. At one time the national guards of five states of our Union were under arms and the regular army called to service. I made no tender of service of our order to the president of the United States and issued no call to my comrades, yet my ear was to the ground and my eye along the horizon. Had the men on duty been unable to restore law and order I should have called on the Grand Army of the Republic, and am confident that every comrade able to bear arms would have responded."

Visiting Commanders Walker and Bigger submitted reports of their visits to different encampments.

The report of Adjutant General James F. Meech is in substance as follows:

"By reports presented to the Twenty-seventh national encampment based upon returns made by the various departments to June 30, 1893, it was shown that when you assumed command the membership of the Grand Army of the Republic consisted of 397,223 comrades, divided among 45 departments and 7,826 posts. From reports received at national headquarters for the year ending June 30, 1894, there are less posts by 493 than one year ago.

"The membership table shows Pennsylvania in the lead, with 48,881 members in 624 posts. New York follows with 39,414 members in 659 posts; Ohio, 38,821 members, 742 posts; Illinois, 27, 099 members, 601 posts; Massachusetts, 23,464 members, 210 posts; Utah, 188 members and five posts. The total expenditures for charity during the year ending June 30, 1894, were $203,780.10."

Inspector General Andrew M. Underhill submitted extracts from the reports of the various assistant inspector generals.

Judge Advocate General Leo Rassier in his report, recommended some change in the form of court martial proceedings.

Surgeon General's Report.

Surgeon General George R. Graham reported that of a total of 44 departments only seven medical directors had sent in reports.

He said: "I made the effort to secure, by correspondence with the health authorities of several large cities, the mortality statistics of the males over 45 years of age in those cities, in order to compare them with the death rate, per 1,000, of the Grand Army veterans of the same localities. Unfortunately the vital statistics of the several cities were kept in such a manner that the required information for comparison could not be obtained. These comparative statistics, if they could be obtained, would be of immense value to the G. A. R. committee on pensions as I believe that they would tend to show that the death rate per 1,000 among the survivors of the war is very much larger than that of males of the same age who were not participants in the war; and hence, that disease and disability is far more prevalent among the veterans than among the other class."

Chaplain-in-Chief A. V. Kendrick in his report said: "The 27 departments reporting gave the following facts:
Number of soldiers and sailors graves decorated by the posts, 282,358; number of soldiers and sailors buried during the year ending last Memorial day, 4,622; cemetery lots owned by the posts, 532; number of soldiers and sailors buried in potter's field, 732; number unmarked by proper headstones, 10,232; number of posts holding Sunday memorial services,

2,225; number of posts holding memorial day exercises, 2,132; number of comrades who took part in the exercises, 182,106; total number taking part, 1-670,106."

The report of the committee on legislation, consisting of James W. Kay, chairman, C. P. Lincoln, W. E. W.
Ross and John Raines, contains a scorching attack upon the Democratic administration. After reciting that the G. A.
R. endeavored to urge upon the Fifty-third congress, at its long session, the duty preference in every public employment to the survivors of the war for the Union, by the enactment of a law which would, though tardily, carry out the promises made these men in sections 1754 and 1755, revised statutes United States, passed March 9, 1893, the report continues:

"But, alas! as the war days recede further from the remembrance of the people of the generation of which we formed a part, and the sacrifices and sufferings of those days are unknown, except by tradition, to those who have since been born, the greatest indifference seems to be shown on the part of our national lawmakers toward those who fought the battles of the Union and still survive."

There is great need that those charged with the lawmaking power in the national congress shall attain a higher and broader patriotism than they now seem possessed of. This can hardly be wondered at when we reflect that men who fought to destroy the Union now dominate and control in both legislative branches of the national government. The committee recommends that the national encampment direct the commander-in-chief to promulgate, either in general orders or by circular, to the order the text of H. R. No. 324, and urge upon the comrades to interview or write the senators from their several states and representatives in congress from their home districts, urging favorable action upon the bill at the second session of the Fifty-third congress to meet December 1 next.

The report of Quartermaster General Louis Wagner, with abstracts, vouchers for receipts, expenditures and issues made during the year ending August 31, 1894, and a statement of the assets, liabilities and investments, was submitted. As a result of the enforcement of the resolutions adopted at the last encampment there are no unpaid bills against the National encampment and nothing owing by departments to the National encampment except for the per capita tax by two of the smaller departments.

The flag fund shows receipts of $1-726.97; expenditures, $1,496.64. There are now 24,878 flags. Contributions to the fund amounted to $1,012.02. The account current shows: Balances Sept.
8, 1893, $6,069.67; Grant monument fund, $8,578.62; flag fund, $714.95; received from sale of supplies, $9,778.82; per capita tax, $9,446.79; Sherman monument fund, $304.96; contributions to flag fund, $1,012.02; and miscellaneous receipts making a grand total of $36,651.85.

The total expenditures were: $23-691.74, of which $7,387.37 was for supplies, $3,838.76 salaries, $5,685.92 postage, $1,496.64 flag fund, $3,000 Grant monument and $1,673.15 traveling expenses.

One of the notable features of the session yesterday was when Major A. P.
Burchfield advanced to the front of the stage and presented the commander-in-chief with a gavel that was emblematic and of great historic interest. It is made of wood from Fort Sumter, Appomattox, Gettysburg and Libby prison, and is bound with metal from the historic cannon. It is thus symbolic of the opening and the closing of the war.
The wood from Gettysburg was taken from near the spot where the commander-in-chief was wounded, and, as he was a prisoner in Libby, has also been reminiscent associations. The gavel is described as follows: "Presented by the citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny to Captain J. G. B. Adams, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. at the encampment held in Pittsburgh, 1894."

The gavel was in a handsome box, which was lined with plush and covered with morocco.

At the same time the famous table from Appomattox, on which Lee signed his surrender to Grant, was presented in the name of Mrs. Custer as the presenting table for the encampment. A letter from Sheridan to Custer, on which the latter was made the owner of this relic, was also presented.

The table is a small box about 18 inches square. The historic relic was secured for the encampment by Major A. P. Burchfield, and brought from New York by Conrad W. H. H. Wasson of Pittsburg.

Commander Adams made a happy response to the speeches of welcome made by Mayors McKenna and Kennedy and others at the meeting yesterday. He said: "I will respond to all these welcomes at once. No boy that passed through Pittsburgh from the East or from the West expected but that he would have the hearty welcome we have been accorded. Personally I remember coming from Massachusetts, musket on shoulder, and when we were welcomed I felt that it was good to be a soldier and I would push on to Washington and do my duty. There is a little sadness, however, about our meeting today. We all expected to grasp the hand of Governor Curtin of Pennsylvania. For who can forget him? We, in Massachusetts, worship Andrews, but the incense of

SIoux City, Ia., Sept. 13.—Ed Webster, who has been in New York and Chicago trying to secure the signatures of Corbett and Jackson to articles for a fight here, has returned home. To a man who interviewed him, he said:
"I am convinced that Jackson is afraid to meet Corbett and simply wishes to two men will ever get together. However, we haven't given up the idea of arranging a fight."

GAMES PLAYED YESTERDAY.

The Pittsburgh Defeat the Senators.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 13.—The Pittsburghs kept up their winning act by defeating the Sen-

AMBITIOUS GIRLS.

SOME GREAT WOMEN WHO WERE PRECOCIOUS CHILDREN.

Some Notable Examples Which Go to Prove That Ability Is Apt to Reveal Itself as Early With Girls as With Boys—Some of Them Had to Struggle.

"I wonder if most famous women were as ambitious and gave signs of future greatness in their early youth as famous men?" asked a thoughtful-looking girl, dropping her book, "The Lives of the Great Musicians," in which with delight she had been reading of the boy Mozart.

"Most great women have been precocious," answered her aunt, whose busy brain possessed the charming faculty of storing up all manner of interesting information against a rain of questions from her clever niece. "Let us go back to that sweetest character in English history, Lady Jane Grey, and we will find she was only 13 years old when that learned scholar and fine gentleman, Roger Ascham, found her reading Plato's 'Phaedon' in the original Greek while the rest of the family were at a hunting party. But it was not with a knowledge of Greek little Lady Jane was satisfied. She spoke French, Latin and Italian fluently, writing them, as she translated easily from Hebrew, Chaldee and Arabic. When her father took her to court, they found with astonishment that this demure country head girl was a far finer scholar than young Edward VI, then a clever boy under the first tutors in England. Yet with all her knowledge of literature and languages Lady Jane embroidered charmingly, sang to several instruments that she played very well, danced and wrote easily and gracefully.

"Felicia Hemans published her first collection of poems when she was only 14.

"Angelica Kaufman, the beautiful woman and gifted artist, who painted the portraits of royalists, when only 11 used her brush far better than her father, who was an artist by profession.

"Mme. Roland never remembered when she learned to read, for at 4 years of age she was greedily perusing any books that came to her hand. Dancing and music she readily acquired, but geography and Latin were her favorite studies. As a girl of 7 she would eagerly rise at 5 o'clock in the morning to get to her books, and so dearly did she love reading she carried her volume of 'Plutarch's Lives' to church when she was 11 years old and secretly read it during the long prayers.

"There is not a more touching story of a child's quick mind starved of its proper food than Caroline Herschel. Her mother was a stupid woman, who kept her daughter purposely so busy about household work she could neither study nor practice on her violin she dearly loved and in which her father wished to instruct her. It was with an aching heart and tearful eyes Caroline plied her needle, while her father and his sons held their little family concerts in which the girl longed to join. She begged to be allowed to study French with her brother, and dancing also, but this her mother forbade, though her gentle, clever father was anxious his Caroline should have a good education. It was not until later in life, when her beloved brother William, the great astronomer, sent for her to join him in England, she had any opportunity to exercise her fine mind.

"Mary Somerville says that as a little girl she had a very bad memory, and at 10 years of age was sent to a boarding school, where the chief lesson for each day was a page of Johnson's Dictionary committed to memory. She never excelled at school, and yet at home no one sympathized a little later with her desire to study Latin except an uncle, who gave her some valuable instruction. She was very much interested in two celestial globes the village schoolmaster taught her to use, and yet, on the whole, she was rather in awe of the big constellations, whose brightness reminded her of lightning, of which she was desperately afraid. At length she persuaded her brother's tutor to buy her an algebra and Euclid, which she studied at night until her mother, in horror at the idea of a girl wasting time on studies meant for boys, deprived her of a candle to read by, and her father feared she might go crazy. It was long after that she really found the courage and sympathy to take up her great studies in earnest.

"It was as a pianist George Eliot was noted at her school, and with the most amazing ease she acquired languages, yet as a very little girl she showed no great promise, much preferring a romp with her brother to her books.

"Fannie Burney, who is also known as Mme. d'Arbly, published her first and cleverest novel when she was only 15, and yet she was 8 years old before learning her alphabet and scarcely received any regular education at all.

"Rachel, you must remember, was a girl just turned into her teens when she borrowed a volume of Racine from a Jewish peddler in old clothes. On reading the great French tragedies she decided to become an actress, and this poor, pretty little Jewess, the youngest of seven children, who had begun life as a street singer, on her second appearance on the French stage was greeted as a great genius. So, you see, my dear, ability is apt to reveal itself as early with girls as boys, and these are a very, very few of the world's great women who loved books in the nursery and gave the most glorious promise while still in short frocks."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Messenger Girls.
And now there is talk of substituting girls for boys at the district telegraph offices. At the Chicago headquarters of one of these companies the matter is being seriously considered, and the experiment will undoubtedly be made. If the change becomes permanent and general, the humorous writers will have to sharpen their pencils for a new theme.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

D. S. Marshall, Victim and Deputies Asks In West Virginia.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 13.—S. S. Vinson, United States marshal for West Virginia and Deputies Vinson, Smith and Peters have been arrested, the former charged with the murder of James Frizzle at a political meeting last week and the others as accessories.

All wanted examination and were bound over.

Maryland People Celebrate.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13.—One hundred years ago Fort Mifflin became the property of the United States. It became celebrated in the second war with Great Britain. Eighty years ago was fought the battle of North Point. As a part of this battle the fort withstood a terrific bombardment by British vessels. In honor of these events Governor Brown declared Sept. 12 as a legal holiday and it was celebrated in magnificent style here.

Order American Mechanics.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 13.—The forty-ninth annual meeting of the national council, Order of American Mechanics, has opened in this city. One hundred representatives are in attendance from 30 different states. Secretary John Sever gave a brief report showing that the order has made a handsome gain all over the country. The national councilor in his report recommends that liquor dealers be barred from membership.

Edison and Others to Be Indicted.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 13.—Much interest is manifested in the doing of Essex county grand jury, now in session in this place on account of the expected indictments against the persons who were implicated in the prize fight at Edison's laboratory between Corbett and Courtney. It is understood that subpoenas were issued for Mr. Edison, W. K. L. Dickson and a number of persons who witnessed the fight.

Westinghouse Wins His Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—In the United States circuit court of appeals the decision of the United States circuit court of New Jersey in the Edison-Westinghouse infringement case in favor of Edison was reversed and the cause remanded, with directions to enter a decree dismissing the bill of complaint. The costs are put on Edison.

Memphis Has a Tornado.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 13.—A portion of North Memphis was swept by a tornado, destroying and damaging property to the extent of $3,500 and killing one negro, Robert Culp, and injuring two other persons slightly. The portion of the city visited is the seat of the lumber mills.

Held For a Ransom.

NILES, Mich., Sept. 13.—The mystery as to the whereabouts of Dr. A. B. Conklin of Cassopolis, who was supposed to have been murdered, is believed to be solved at last. Mrs. Conklin has received a letter stating that Dr. Conklin was in Chicago and would be delivered over for a ransom.

Brazilian Monarchists Plotting.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 13.—The monarchists are still chafing under the republican form of government, and it is said that they have not yet abandoned the hope of re-establishing the monarchy. In fact reports are current that they are at the present time engaged in organizing a revolution.

A Natural Gas Explosion.

ANDERSON, Ind., Sept. 13.—At Alexandria a natural gas explosion caused the probable loss of life and much property damage. Four people were buried in the debris of the express and telegraph building and were not rescued until three hours had elapsed.

Got Hold of $1,500,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—A local paper contains a 3-column expose of the methods of Algerian H. Wilcox, a western land promoter with headquarters at Philadelphia. It is said Wilcox has succeeded in getting men to invest at least $1,500,000 in his projects.

Gave Him Rough Treatment.

HILLSDALE, Mich., Sept. 13.—Rev. Charles Clancy of Frontier was tarred and feathered and rolled down a steep hill by about 40 masked men, some of them husbands who did not like the minister's style.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Mrs. Fred Hyde is confined to her home in Huston addition seriously ill with an attack of grip.

Between a faker and a magic lantern show the Diamond was so crowded last night as to be impassable at times.

The Diamond well was cleaned and repaired today under the direction of the enterprising committee who have it in charge.

Ticket Agent Adam Hill sold 29 tickets for the 6:10 train last night, 29 for the 5 train this morning, and 44 for the 8 o'clock train, all for the Grand Army encampment in the Smoky City, while 50 were disposed of at noon.

East Liverpool people are not much for notoriety. Only one East Liverpool signature among about a thousand appeared on the Telegraph register at the encampment Tuesday. Of course the hotel registers tell a different tale.

The killing of sheep by dogs is said to have occurred on several farms north of this city Tuesday evening. Who owned the sheep was not learned, although if such is the case they will probably be heard of in court before long.

A Pittsburg paper notes that a young man named Williams from this city, was taken ill on Fifth avenue, Sunday, and was carried into a hotel nearby. He had not been feeling well all day, but after taking some medicine was able to return home.

Every reader of the NEWS REVIEW will notice that this paper always gives the news. The Rat alley abomination contained matter, given as news, which appeared in the NEWS REVIEW several days ago. Verily the "greatest paper in eastern Ohio" is a journalistic error of gigantic proportions.

Mrs. Maggie Monroe, of Marshalltown, Iowa, is a colored lady who has the distinction of working for several railroads and traveled on passes over four different roads to this city. She has been visiting her mother, Mrs. John Washington, and returned home this morning, after a stay of several weeks.

The members of the fire department met in regular monthly session last night, but owing to the absence of Fire Chief M. R. Adam, who is seeing the sights in Pittsburg, the usual business was left undone. Dick Albright paid the boys their monthly salaries, all being present but Willis Gaston.

The base ball game between the Standard pottery club and the Knowles new end team is attracting great attention this afternoon, and West End park is visited by a large crowd. Each side will make a special effort for that $25, and bets last night were not scarce. One man is known to have wagered $50 on the result.

Samuel Buzzard, of the Calcutta road, met with a severe accident which will lay him up for a few days. He was walking along a plank near the Knowles China works yesterday morning when the board turned and he was thrown to the ground. He evidently struck some pieces of broken ware as his arm and leg were badly cut, and the gashes are so severe as to confine him to his home.

When the appointments for the year were announced at the conference in Uniontown this week it was known that Rev. R. B. Whitehead had been returned to his charge in this city. The Methodist Protestant people like their pastor very well, and the appointment meets with general approval. Although a young man Reverend Whitehead is a vigorous worker in the cause, and is steadily increasing his congregation.

Captain Narrway, the young lady whose services in the sixth corps of the Salvation army in Cleveland have been appreciated, arrived last night to take charge of the local army. She exchanged places with Captain Galley who left here with his wife last week after being in charge nearly a year. The army will hold services in Chester tonight, and will probably continue to visit the village across the river regularly every Thursday.

Among the visitors to East Liverpool on their way to and from the encampment is Joseph Cook, now of Akron. Mr. Cook was in the dairy business in this city 35 years ago, and responded to the call for volunteers in the sixties. He took a ride on the street cars yesterday, and the changes in the city surprised him almost as much as the length and beauty of the electric line. He still thinks the Ceramic City one of the best in the state.

ON THE ROAD.

How They Travel in Far Away Arizona.

We drove into Prescott at 7 o'clock, after having breakfast at the fort, where 20 families reside. While there I bought a blanket from a young soldier, and went on to town to see what it is really like. There is nothing very inviting about it. Buildings are around a square, in the center of which stands the court house, at one time used as a capitol. There are a few good stores, but no nice buildings for the transaction of business. The only sidewalk is of worn-out boards, and the greatest business seems to be the supplying of mines in the territory. Drinking, gambling and prostitution are extensively carried on, openly and with astonishing boldness. The climate is lovely, and it would be hard to find a better one in summer. One feature is that all things are dearer than at home. I met quite a number of pleasant gentlemen among the county officers, and find that social qualities differ in the west from both north and south. Today we discovered a great box of California pears in the bottom of the wagon. They had not been touched since taken from the parent stock, and you can imagine how we enjoyed them. While in Prescott I noticed that a great many people followed me with their eyes, and was not a little annoyed, but when I thought it was not the custom to wear dusters in that place, I knew the reason. Harry Washburn says they took me for a capitalist. At 1:30 I got my buggy from the hotel, and we began the return trip. We had agreed to take with us a Methodist minister who was "broke," and an Irishman bound for the mines. When we were out about three miles the miner discovered that he had forgotten a bucket. As he had a horse Harry made him go back for it. Then at another stop the preacher left a frying pan, a loss to me, as it was my property. Harry took him in hand with a long lecture, and showed that in the west the responsible one is he who uses it last. It was more vigorous than elegant, but proved the point. We camped that night in Copper Basin, not far from a mine, and managed to be on the road at the usual hour next morning. After driving about four miles we came to where the road forked, and Harry asked the Irishman which we should take, as he had claimed to know all about the country. A forcible conversation showed that he was as ignorant as any, but he willingly rode back to see if he could find someone who could tell us. He returned without the information, and things looked serious, for the channels were all dry and the horses needed water. After much discussion we took the road to the left and in four miles reached a canyon with high rocks on each side of the creek. I ran forward and found a little muddy water. While the horses were being watered I climbed the rocks, and sweeping the country with my glass discovered a stage station about three miles away. To this we drove and it proved to be Stanton, Skull valley. Here we filled the barrels, canteens and horses, and by taking every road to the left regained the right road in seven miles. At People's valley we camped for the night, all of us being very tired after the hard work of the day.

Sunday is the same as ordinary times here, and Sunday morning saw us early on the road. We captured a Gila monster here, and kept him in a box until he tore the string, and then we had to kill him. He was 18 inches long, and like all his species very sluggish and anxious to avoid contact with man. But when compelled they will fight, and it is believed that there is no antidote for the poison. The people out here love to call the streams rivers, but we reached the first running water we had seen on Sunday afternoon, and while Harry took the Irishman and his tools to the mines, the preacher and I slept. When Harry returned it was dark as pitch and they went to bed after supper. I could not sleep but watched a gathering storm. Great clouds hung over the towering mountains, and mighty peals of thunder dropped to earth only to be returned in noises which echoed and re-echoed until lost among the peaks and canyons. The grandeur of the scene is intensified by the brilliant lightning flashes, coming as it were in broad, expansive sheets. When the storm was at its height two big bulls, bellowing with might and main, came tearing toward the camp. Thinking there would be a fight I sprang upon the wagon, but got down in a minute, for the danger had passed on one side. Next morning when I awoke one bull was near the horses, contentedly eating hay and as meek as any civilized bovine. This valley four years ago was the scene of an awful flood. By the destruction of Walnut Grove dam a great mass of water ran through the valley, destroying 75 lives and whole herds of cattle. We camped only a short distance away from the dam, and on the banks can be plainly seen the marks of the flood. At 6 o'clock we left, and a few miles below entered Box canyon, the opening to which is but 141 feet wide. The rocky walls rise to an immense height, and here the marks of the flood can be seen by the presence of gravel and big boulders. When the flood came the water was forced back into the gulches, and one can easily imagine what a magnificent sight could be seen here on that day.

Two Lives Saved.
Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Potts drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Thankful For the Rise.
No one is more thankful for the rise in the river than those who live near it, for they were commencing to notice the stench which arises from the stagnant water. Patrons of the water works are also happy, because the fluid dispensed by the city department could not be of the best when it was drawn from the river. Last evening a number of persons took advantage of the temporary rise to have a boat ride without danger of grounding.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had bad colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by A. H. Bulger, Druggist.

We Want a Directory.
Some enterprising chap, desirous of making a few dollars can line his pockets if he drops into this place and puts out a reliable directory. There have been so many changes in the past year that the book now in use is almost worthless. A stranger got an address out of the Thompson House directory the other day, and calling at the house found the former occupant had moved, and he wasted a whole morning in finding him.

Irving W. Larimore, physical director of Young Men's Christian association Des Moines, Iowa, says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, foot ball players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocations; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one half the time usually required. For sale by A. H. Bulger, Druggist.

See the Colonel.
The "Colonel," at the Grand tonight, will be one of the plays of the season. It is replete with interesting situations and laughable effects. The company is good, and the play so catchy that it can not fail to please the splendid audience who will be there to hear it. There is a good advance sale of seats, promising a first class house.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for years been troubled with chronic diarrhea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. Twenty-five and 50 cents a bottle for sale by A. H. Bulger, Druggist.

Conductors Will Return.
Superintendent Andrews, of the street railway, said today that when patronage on the line justified the expenditure conductors would again be employed, and the road operated as before. When the potteries started the company carried many passengers, but there was a falling off this week, due probably to the many people out of town.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Potts.

SOLID NEWS.

STEINFELD & VINEY'S,
Clothing to the Masses.

A Concert.
A grand concert and festival will be given by the ladies of the Golden Eagle, Saturday evening, Sept. 15. Manley's full concert band, will furnish music.

HE TOLD THE TRUTH AT LAST.

Had Not a Nickel to Pay His Fare, but a Conductor Trusted Him.

"Dead broke" is a relative term. Some men are "dead broke" on $10. Some don't call it "dead broke" until they reach a nickel. It's pretty "dead broke" when you haven't even the one nickel for car fare, want to get from Twenty-third to Fulton street, are in a hurry, couldn't walk for a fortune and know there's money waiting for you at the other end if you can get there.

This was the case with a young man one day last week, and this is how he got there. Boarding a Broadway car at Twenty-third street among a crowd of others, he walked forward and took his stand beside the gripman. It was some time before the conductor reached him, when he fumbled for change, as though he knew he had it in vest and trousers pockets, finally remarking that since he couldn't find it he supposed he'd "have to get off." The conductor saw it in that light, too, and politely made way for the young man, who by this time had reached Thirteenth street.

Walking down a few blocks, he boarded the third car following, and this time the conductor called for his fare. Again he affected the searching process, and again the conductor waited patiently, while the car spun along until at last the young man anxiously declared that he must have lost his pocketbook. The conductor dinged the bell, deciding that the best thing to be done was to step off and look for it.

Eighth street was now reached, and again at Fifth street a fresh car was boarded. Another search after change was gone through and another kindly suggestion from a conductor looked for, but this one said: "Ain't got no money? How far are you going? Fulton? Oh, no; you'd better get off." And he got off just 20 blocks below his original point.

"I guess I'll try the truth now," he thought to himself, and this time he stood out on the back platform and didn't make a first dive into his pockets. He had got sick of it, and it wasn't paying either.

"Look here, conductor," he said, "I'm dead broke. Haven't a nickel. Will have lots when I get to Fulton street. Will you give me your number and trust me to ride down?"

"Ride you do," said the conductor, and that conductor hasn't regretted it. He's got more than the fare since, and the young man who began on the lies has learned a first rate lesson on the old fashioned policy of honesty. —New York Herald.

Fertilizing With Sugar.

There is a diversity of opinion as to the land most suited to the cultivation of melons. Sandy, light soil, very highly fertilized with phosphate and with salt, will produce an abundant crop of large, fine melons, but there are many planters who affirm that they should be planted on a good quality of soil without fertilizers of any kind, as the artificial ingredients contained in the fertilizers detract from the native sweetness of the fruit. They also claim that the highly fertilized vines bear all their fruit about the same time, making a short season, while vines planted in unfertilized soil will bear gradually one melon after another, affording fresh fruit for a long period, even until it is so late in October that the first frosts have killed the vines. An old planter of ancient days, fond of experimenting, fertilized the soil in which he planted his melon seeds with quantities of sugar, producing a most satisfactory result, the melons being of unusual size and sweetness. That was done in days when expense was no object. —South Carolina Cor. Philadelphia Times.

A Buttermilk Well.

Did you ever see a buttermilk well? I mean a well that yields buttermilk. No, there are no buttermilk wells about here that I know of, but I saw one out in northern Indiana once. It was connected with a creamery. There is no market for buttermilk there, and the inhabitants of the town, who can get all the buttermilk they want for nothing by simply going after it, never touch it. As fast as the great revolving churns have precipitated their wealth of golden butter the milky residuum is run off into the troughs that lead to the buttermilk well. From thence it is pumped up to feed hogs, being distributed by a system of troughs among the pens. These hogs are merely kept to utilize the buttermilk, which would otherwise go to waste, and the fatness of these animals so fed defies words. Very little else is given them. Buttermilk pork is said to be superior, especially when supplemented with corn. —New York Herald.

Religion and the Regulations.

The following story reaches me apropos of soldiers changing their religion: A soldier applied in the usual form to a certain C. O. for permission to change his religion. The C. O. was a little hazy about the regulations, but he was quite clear that there must be two parties to an exchange. "Very well," he replied. "I have no objection. But you must get a good man to exchange with you." —London Truth.

In the Newspaper Line.

Banks (in the newspaper line)—H'mph! Here's a squib credited to the Perkins Junction Banner that I wrote six years ago for The Daily Bread.

Rivers (fellow laborer)—Do you remember everything you have ever written?

"Of course I do."

"What a cave of gibion your memory must be!" —Chicago Tribune

Some one has said that a diet of oatmeal and brown bread tends to promote the growth of the hair. However this may be, the diet is a good one for many more assured reasons.
